RCI was chartered, in part, to bridge the gap between the seemingly disparate elements of the roofing profession. It is the intent of Interface to connect with these elements, educate and inform about roofing-related topics, establish a common ground for discussion, promote Institute programs, and branch out toward even more people. Interface is circulated monthly to over 3,000 people (nationwide and overseas) including RCI members, specifiers, facility managers, owners, industry contacts, and a growing number of highly placed professionals. Interface is frequently distributed at various trade shows, as well as educational and institutional functions. The articles contained in this publication are intended to provide information that may be useful to members of the Roof Consultants Institute. RCI does not necessarily endorse this information. The reader must evaluate the information in light of the unique circumstances of any particular situation and independently determine its applicability. Entire contents, © RCI.

On the Cover: Those involved in forensic analysis see the ugly side of the industry: nonperformance. Too many times, the failure was completely avoidable. Even so, there are recurring examples of how not to build something. Those who practice standard construction can expect premature failure. Those who practice the analytical sciences know... "You can pay us now or pay us later."
