

IIBEC Credentials

Answering the need to establish a standard of qualifications and practice in the building enclosure industry, IIBEC has developed robust credential programs. IIBEC credential holders have demonstrated extensive knowledge and proved their expertise through examination, character reference, and professional experience. Credential holders are required to complete annual continuing education requirements and follow a code of ethics for the objectivity of service.

REWC®

REGISTERED EXTERIOR
WALL CONSULTANT

REWCs have demonstrated the knowledge, skills, and abilities to provide informed and impartial consulting and documentation related to the investigation, design, construction, repair, testing, and codes and standards of exterior wall systems. These consultants are versed in wall drainage systems, different exterior wall cladding systems, fenestration assemblies, proper selection of sealants, and forces imposed on exterior wall systems.

REWO®

WALL OBSERVER

REWOs are impartial on-site inspectors for the design team, whose vigilance helps keep construction on track and on budget. REWOs observe all construction materials, equipment, and supplies for quality and compliance with the design team's intent. Their expertise enables them to determine if the removal, installation, repair, or maintenance of exterior wall systems are following the scope and intent of the contract documents and are being installed and executed following accepted practices.

The REWO credential is expected to evolve as the preferred standard of practice for exterior wall quality assurance professionals.

*To earn the RRC, RWC, or REWC designations, a candidate must also pass a separate General Consultant Knowledge (GCK) exam. All GCK questions pertain to consulting practices in general and are applicable to all consultant disciplines. If an applicant already holds a consultant designation and wishes to apply for another, the applicant is exempt from taking the GCK exam.
